

Metropolitan Transportation Commission Citizen Advisory Groups

Here are three groups created to gain public input for regionwide transportation policy for the Bay Area:

Metropolitan Transportation Commission Policy Advisory Council, Equity and Access Subcommittee

The Policy Advisory Council is a citizen group structured around interests related to the economy, the environment and social equity that advises MTC on current and future transportation policies. The Equity and Access Subcommittee of the Policy Advisory Council is made up of representatives from Council, and studies issues of equity and access for older adults, people with disabilities, low-income populations and other transportation disadvantaged communities.

Bay Area Partnership

The Bay Area Partnership is a confederation that works to improve safety, mobility and air quality. Membership is comprised of top executives from Bay Area transit agencies, county transportation authorities, city and county public works departments, Caltrans and MTC.

Regional Advisory Working Group

The Regional Advisory Working Group meets periodically to provide input on updates to Plan Bay Area from private residents, local governments, advocacy groups and others.

RAWG has no set membership, but the group usually includes staff from MTC, city and county governments, transit agencies, county transportation authorities, representatives from various interest groups and interested residents.
